Complete End of Season Ranking

A Simplified Explanation of the Ranking System

Imagine a bucket with a fixed number of balls belonging to teams Red, Green and Blue. At the start each team is given the same number of balls

After one event Red beats Blue Blue then gives some of their balls to Red, but no balls are created or lost, they are just shared differently. Green didn't play so keeps the same number of balls.

The ranking order then looks like this

How many balls are transferred?

This depends on Red and Blue's relative positions in the league.

- If Red is higher up and wins they take less balls away from Blue as they were expected to win
- If Red loses to Blue this represents an upset, so Blue takes more balls from the stronger Red.

Red is top having taken balls from blue

Green is in the middle with the same number of balls

Blue is at the bottom having lost balls to red
